Subject: Act of Remembrance at War Memorial This Sunday

Dear All
After yes it's on; no it's not, this is to confirm that we are allowed, and we will be holding an Act of Remembrance at the war memorial this Sunday 8 November starting at 10.55am.

Steve McAvoy has kindly agreed to be in charge of making it Covid-19 safe so please respond positively to him or his Marshalls if asked to move to another spot or otherwise improve social distancing.

In principle it means that only individuals laying wreaths on behalf of organisations or otherwise leading the service will be standing around the war memorial or on that side of the road, everyone else should be on the sports field on the other side of the road, and those people must stand in their social bubble or be in groups of no more than two (NOT 6).

Those who wish to place individual crosses, poppies, etc. should wait until after the service has ended and those around the war memorial have dispersed before they place their cross suitably socially distanced, or preferably return later in the day. I would remind all of us (including me) to minimise social interaction before and after the service. Regrettably there can be no singing of hymns or the national anthem.

Sorry this is all a bit bureaucratic and not very friendly, but it is the only way we are allowed to proceed Covid-19 safe.

For those who cannot or do not wish to attend there will be a 10.00am Zoom Service of Remembrance finishing at 10.30am and of course I believe there will be a 11.00am Act of Remembrance from Whitehall on the television.
